Discovery

Message from the CEO

It has been a busy and exciting month. Every day I learn something new and fascinating about the mining and energy sectors. In early March, I was very fortunate to attend PDAC (Prospectors & Dealers Association of Canada) in Toronto. It is a showcase that has to be seen to be believed. Around 28,000 registered delegates attend from around the world. The presentations over five days focused on commodity outlooks; new technology and new resource provinces.

Our annual showcase event, the Women in Resources Awards, celebrated its 10th anniversary recently and was held as a gala dinner for the first time. More than 1,200 people attended the dinner event at PCEC. It was a fantastic night.

ANNUAL BUSINESS
LUNCH

30 APRIL 2019

Registrations open for CME's Annual Business Lunch

Registrations for CME's Annual Business Lunch on Tuesday, 30 April are now open. This year's lunch is one not to be missed. It will feature The West Australian's new Senior Editor, Anthony De Ceglie, and international AI innovator, Michael Zolotov, Co-Founder and Chief Technology Officer of Razor Labs. Anthony and Michael will provide their insights into what the future holds in their respective industries and the resources sector. There will also be a Q&A session after their presentations.

Productivity Commission Mental Health Inquiry

Further to the release of the Inquiry Terms of Reference, the Productivity Commission has released the Issues Paper – The Social and Economic Benefits of Improving Mental Health. CME is preparing a submission focusing on the resources industry's ongoing proactive approach to workplace mental health and promoting the well-being of the workforce.

Submissions close on 5 April and will inform the Inquiry Report expected to be released later in the year. If you would like to make a contribution to the submission, contact CME.

Building and Construction Industry Training Fund – Five Yearly Review

The statutory review of the Building and Construction Industry Training Fund (BCITF) has commenced. CME, together with APPEA and AMEC, represent the interests of the resources sector on the review Steering Group.

Furthermore, CME will be writing a submission as part of the review and invites feedback from members specifically around the legislative implications of the BCITF levy on the resources sector. If you would like further information about the review or to find out how to engage in this process, contact Susan Cull, Manager – People and Communities on (08) 9220 8517.

Workplace Exposure Standards

CME is seeking member feedback on proposed changes to workplace exposure standards for respirable crystalline silica, which is currently available for stakeholder review and comment. The changes are being proposed by Safe Work Australia (SWA) who is currently evaluating the Workplace exposure standards for airborne contaminants to ensure they are based on the highest quality evidence and supported by a rigorous scientific approach.

CME is seeking member feedback by 8 April to inform an industry response on the matter.

Legislative Advisory Committee

CME attended the third meeting of the Commission for Occupational Health and Safety's (COSH) Legislative Advisory Committee (LAC). Prior to the meeting, CME reconvened its Work Health and Safety (WHS) Legislation Working Group to discuss industries' positions on related matters. The COSH LAC is reviewing the draft Consultation Documents for the proposed content of the WHS Regulations. This will include regulations to cover general industry as well as the mining, petroleum and pipeline sectors.

LAC recommendations will be submitted to COSH for approval, and the consolidation documents will be released for a period of public consultation in the coming months. Contact CME to take part in this process.

CME hosts dinner with Matt Canavan

During his recent visit to Perth, Senator the Hon. Matt Canavan, the Federal Minister for Resources and Northern Australia, and Federal MP for O'Connor, Rick Wilson attended a dinner with CME members Cameco, Chevron, Northern Minerals, and Pilbara Minerals.

Minister Canavan spoke at length about his portfolio and the upcoming federal election. He also fielded a number of questions about how to encourage more people to study mining related subjects, fracking, his passion for regional communities to prosper from the resources sector and the need to only have state-based environmental approval agencies.

Boardroom Lunch with the Hon. Brendan O'Connor

CME's Tony Monaghan and Susan Cull hosted a boardroom lunch with the Federal Shadow Minister for Employment of Workplace Relations, the Hon Brendan O'Connor MP and CME members. The Shadow Minister provided a policy briefing to members around key ALP policies including industrial relations, skilled migration, skills and training. Members had the opportunity to share with the Shadow Minister how government policy affects resources business and operations.

CME visit State Parliament

The Hon. Michael Mischin MLC, Shadow Attorney General; Minister for Commerce; Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Legislative Council, recently hosted a team of managers and advisers from CME at State Parliament. The tour was designed to familiarise new staff with the inner workings of Parliament and proceedings in the upper and lower houses, including introduction, debate and passage of legislation, committees, question time and motions. Staff will use this knowledge to provide a better service to members on legislation and other issues relevant to the resources sector.

Royal Government of Bhutan Delegation Visit

CME, alongside the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, The Department of Mines, Industry Regulation and Safety, and Curtin University, recently hosted a delegation from the Department of Geology and Mines and Ministry of Economic Affairs of Bhutan. CME presented to the delegation of eight on mining regulatory best practice and community consultation and engagement. CME also arranged visits to Curtin University and Alcoa's Mine and Refinery, with a highlight being discussions with environmental specialists on rehabilitation operations.

Workplace Health and Safety Committee

This month, CME's Workplace Health and Safety (WHS) Committee convened its first meeting for 2019. Members undertook a detailed review of issues within the portfolio to confirm work to be prioritised through 2019. A number of key policy issues were discussed including the WHS legislative reforms, the progress of CME's partnership with Lifeline WA and Safe Work Australia's review of workplace exposure standards.

Darren Kavanagh, the newly appointed WorkSafe WA Commissioner, attended to introduce himself to members and provide an overview of key WHS priority areas.

Talison Lithium Greenbushes Mine Tour

In early March, the South West Environment Forum (SWEF) met in Greenbushes to discuss environmental assessments, climate change and environmental legislative reviews. Members also discussed potential collaborations regarding research and management of dieback in the South West, following a presentation from the chair of the Dieback Working Group, Cameron Crowe.

After the meeting, SWEF members attended a tour of Talison Lithium's mine to view expansion activities, a new water treatment plant and rehabilitated forest and waterway areas.

EU Delegation Tour

CME recently hosted 22 European Union delegates on a tour of the South West, visiting Talison's Greenbushes mine site and BHP's Nickel Refinery at Kwinana. The delegation was in Perth as part of the West Australian European Business Association – Business Week and were interested in gaining an understanding of the resources sector in Western Australia, particularly the growing strategic battery minerals industry and the potential trade with European states.

CME would like to extend thanks to Craig Dawson, General Manager Greenbushes Operation and Justin Bauer, General Manager Kwinana Nickel Refinery for taking the time to speak with and educate the delegation.

New CME Staff Member Profile – Tony Monaghan

Tony joined CME in February 2019 as Director, Communications and Campaigns. Tony joins CME after managing corporate communications at The Brand Agency for more than nine years. Prior to that, he held senior positions in television newsrooms as a journalist, chief of staff and producer in WA and overseas. He also worked as Chief of Staff, Principal Policy Adviser and Media Adviser in the Gallop and Carpenter Labor Government.

Tony is responsible for overseeing internal and external communications, campaigns, promoting the work of CME and its members and creating a greater awareness about the economic and social benefits from the mining, oil and gas sectors.

CME enjoyed a Business Breakfast with the WA Nationals in Kalgoorlie in early March. The entire WA National Party attended the breakfast hosted by the Kalgoorlie-Boulder Chamber of Commerce and Industry, and heard from the Kalgoorlie business community regarding issues in the region. Issues included a shortage of childcare centres and placements, a lack of doctors and access to developable land.

CME raised the point that with more than 1,000 jobs available in the region, liveability played a crucial role in attracting and retaining families to the region to service these jobs. Nationals leader Mia Davies MLA echoed these concerns from all over regional WA.

Kalgoorlie Women in Mining (KalWIM)

Kalgoorlie Women in Mining (KalWIM) hosted the Hon. Simone McGurk MLA, Minister for Child Protection; Women's Interests; Prevention of Family and Domestic Violence; Community Services at its International Women's Day (IWD) event in early March. Minister McGurk spoke about the WA State Government's efforts to reduce family violence.

Nicole O'Keefe, a qualified electrician with BHP Iron Ore, was also a guest speaker. She successfully completed a mature age apprenticeship after a career change from HR to an operational, frontline role. In 2018, Nicole won the CME Women in Resources Outstanding Tradeswomen/Technician/Operator award and also went on later that year to win the Women in Resources National Award for the same category.

Commission for Occupational Safety and Health

In early March, CME attended the second meeting for 2019 of the Commission for Occupational Safety and Health (COSH). Members considered and endorsed the draft Code of practice – Mentally healthy workplaces for FIFO workers in the resources and construction sectors. It will now be sent to the Minister for approval and gazettal.

A number of other priority WHS matters were discussed, including the recently released report on the national review of the model WHS laws and Safe Work Australia's review of workplace exposure standards.

Growing A Healthy Child in the Pilbara Forums

one of four held across the Pilbara, which looked at an intersectoral approach involving social determinant sectors such as health, housing, education, employment, police and justice to achieve a positive collective impact on the health of children within the Pilbara.

It is expected that information gathered from these forums will lead to up to five areas of shared concern, with proposals for stakeholders to work collaboratively on resolving these through strategies already working in the region. These areas and strategies will be tabled at the next Pilbara District Leadership Group meeting in early May.

Curtin Breakfast – FIFO Mental Health Research

Last week, CME attended the Centre for Transformative Work Design's (CTWD) breakfast event, which focused on its recent research report into the mental health of FIFO workers.

The report which was released last year included 18 recommendations to prevent the emergence of mental ill-health amongst FIFO workers. The findings indicate a holistic approach with a shared responsibility between organisations, individuals, government and the broader community is required to meaningfully influence the mental health and well-being of workers. CME has already begun work as part of our partnership with Lifeline WA to assist industry in implementing relevant recommendations.

MCA tax conference

CME's new Director Policy and Advocacy, Rob Carruthers, appeared as part of an industry panel at the MCA Biennial Tax Conference last week. A key focus of the Conference was Australia's increasingly uncompetitive company tax rate and its negative impact on investment attractiveness.

The panel discussed factors affecting Western Australia's competitiveness. Rob said that while the State's economy has moved positively beyond green shoots, driven by strong growth in investment and employment in the resource sector, WA cannot simply rely on its natural advantages in a globally competitive market. The panel was unanimous in agreeing the importance of stable and progressive government policy, and also the efficiency of regulatory processes, as key drivers of investment confidence.

A conversation with Julie Bishop

In early March, CME attended EY's breakfast with the Hon. Julie Bishop MP, who shared her experience of being Foreign Affairs Minister and the importance of balancing work and life, mental health strategies in dealing with stress and multiple time zones. All proceeds went to charity group Youth Focus who deal with mental health issues in the 15-25 year old age group.

The Strong Australia Network

The Business Council of Australia has recently launched The Strong Australia Network to connect business to the wider Australian community and promote campaigns focused on issues, policies and laws that have an impact on business. The campaigns will focus on issues like competitiveness, skills and regulation, as well as seeking to interrupt the anti-business conversation and remind people of the value of a strong business community.

There is also a complementary program of BCA events in larger regional cities across Australia which will bring together suppliers, distributors, employees, customers and business organisations to discuss issues facing regions and work on the solutions to the challenges people face.

While the full list is not on the BCA website yet, we have been notified that there will be an event, likely a lunch or dinner, in Busselton on 26 or 27 September. The MCA would like to encourage members to attend these events where possible. The best way to stay informed about these events is to sign up here to the Strong Australia Network.
